U.N. Told Arab Nations Could Resolve Crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) -The United Arab Republic and the Soviet Union both urged the U. N. Security Council Wednesday to call for withdrawal of British armed forces from Kuwait.

Omar Loutfi, the U.A.R. delegate, accompanied his call with a plea to the council to let the Arab countries themselves resolve the crisis over the oil rich desert

He said this could best be done within the machinery of the Arab League, whose secretary-general is currently consulting with leaders of Arab countries.

The Soviet and U.A.R. positions were set forth at the second meeting of the 11-nation council on Kuwait. The council met for the first time in extraordinary session on Sunday, then adjourned until Wed-

The rebel protest strike against the French threat to partition the North African territory degenerated into bloody rioting. Casualties dropped in the dusty streets in many towns on the anniversary of the French landing in Algeria on July 5, 1830.

French troops grimly put down disorders with gunfire, losing six men killed and an estimated 20 wounded at the hands of demonstrators rallying around the rebel green and white colors.

Although it was one of the most powerful demonstrations of prorebel feeling among Algeria's Moslems in four years, the chief government spokesman, Jacques Coup de Frejac, said the day's incidents "proved nothing."

AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market is just pausing to catch its breath, an advisory service said this week.

Standard & Poor's Corp. commented that prices might continue to drift irregularly lower until the market completes a consolidation process but it doesn't expect a severe break.

In this service's opinion the market is suffering, not from heavy selling pressure, but from a lack of aggressive bidding.

Buyers have taken to the sidelines, apparently in the belief that the sharp October-May rise had gone a long way toward discounting the business recovery now strongly under way, Standard & Poor's said.

"Their decision to take a second look has also been influenced by the recent outbreak of pricecutting in several industries and by the threat of a federal investigation of the stock market," it explained.

"Also, large secondary offerings by Ford and Gulf Oil (both highly successful) absorbed roughly $300 million of investment funds. In this reappraisal, the list has become much more selective

"Cautious optimism has replaced the unrestrained buoyancy that led in some instances to indiscriminate bidding of prices to unrealistically high levels. This calmer atmosphere is good for the market."

W. I. La Tourette of the brokerage firm, Shearson, Hammill & Co. advises caution until the technical position of the market has been improved.

He notes that speculative psychology apparently has been severely dented by the sharp drop in prices of many electronic and other glamor issues as well as the attrition in the over-the-counter market over the past month or so.

"It is likely to take some time before investors become more venturesome," he observes. "The longer term outlook continues good, with a background of strong business and a govrenment deficit, so that this quiet period would seem a good opportunity for acquiring attractive stocks."

The market's recent action, while on the whole disappointing, doesn't eliminate the chances for an early summer advance of respectable proportions, says A. M. Kidder & Co.

"It appears that the market will have to show something very soon if the hoped for July rise is not to fizzle out," the firm adds. "It seems quite unlikely, however, that in the absence of some particularly disturbing news a severe decline will occur."

If his plan is carried out, the paper will thus conform with the growing trend on shell-blasted Quemoy - most of the island's Nationalist defenders eat and sleep underground and defend this anti-Communist bastion in underground fortifications.

Even during the 1958 crisis when the Reds launched a massive bombardment on the Quemoy complex, newsboys continued to deliver copies of the paper.

"Once, a shell fell only about 30 yards from our office. It broke all of our windows and scattered some type. But we did not stop working," Chao said.

None of its 12 employes or 30odd newsboys quit.

Today, Chao's paper has a circulation of about 6,000. There are three fulltime reporters plus 40 part - time "stringers" scattered throughout the island and on Little Quemoy island. The paper has four pages but Chao hopes to expand it to eight pages.

Chao has been with the paper ever since it started in 1949. He is a veteran newsman of some 30 years. He once worked for the Central Daily News, an organ of the Kuomintang, in Nanking in MOUSE TRAPS SPACE DATA-An ordinary house mouse, having survived neighborhood cats, lives to provide science with important information for space fliers. For 80-hours, the mouse occupied a bell jar, or "life cell," where its only source of oxygen at a simulated 75,000-foot altitude, was potassium superoxide, held (above) by C. C. Simms at the Lockheed Bio-Medical Systems Development department at Sunnyvale, Calif. The experiment was part of an experiment to develop an inexpensive air regenerator system for men in space.

Smoke Used To Help Mend Broken Bones

PITTSBURGH (UPI) - The thick, choking smoke of industry, which gave Pittsburgh the unwanted title of the "Smoky City," now is being used to mend broken bones, help avert mid-air collisions of aircraft and even put moths on a starvation diet.

At U. S. Steel Corp. coke ovens here, as well as in other parts of the country, a special recovery process is being used to transform this smoke into about 145 pounds of chemicals per ton of coal burned in its conversion to

The by-product chemicals are contributing to the manufacture of paints, explosives, insecticides, nylon, cosmteics and prefumes.

A special bone glue has been developed that hardens so fast a patient may move a recently broken limb within a few hours after the glue has been applied. A fluorescent paint developed with chemicals from coal smoke is being used on planes by the Air Training Command to help cut the number of collisions.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I live in a fourfamily flat. We pay $150 a month rent. The other two apartments are occupied by people we rarely see. The landlord and his wife live in the fourth flat.

The landlord and his wife leave almost every weekend for huntfishing, skiing, bowling, bridge tournaments, - whatever appeals to them.

If my husband and I didn't cut the grass and water the lawn nobody would. The year before last we spent a lot of time (and some money) on the lawn and it looked lovely. Last summer we decided to do nothing to see what happened. Well, the grass grew so tall we were ashamed to have friends over.

This summer we are faced with the same problem. Please don't suggest that we move. We love our apartment and the location i ideal. What's the solution? - J.D.

ANOTHER BIG REASON BEHIND THE BIG BOOM IN FORD SALES:

No other wagon can match Ford's features (or popularity!)

There's a whole wagonload of Ford features that only America's station wagon specialists can bring you.

First, there's more room. Ford's extended load deck is the longest and widest in its field. The tailgate opening is seven inches wider than last year, too.

There's more convenience. You can have an electrically controlled roll-down rear window in any Ford wagon . . . it's standard in all Country Squires and 9-Passenger Country Sedans. And only Ford in its field builds wagons with all seats facing forward.

There's more distinction. The Country Squire (shown above) is the one and only wagon in its field with body panels that look like mahogany, wear like steel.

There are more savings, too. Ford's Ranch Wagon is America's lowest-priced,* full-size wagon. And like all Fords, every Ford wagon is built to be more service-free: goes 30,000 miles between chassis lubrications, 4,000 miles between oil changes, brakes adjust automatically, mufflers are made to last three times as long as ordinary mufflers, and the finish never needs waxing.

STOP putting off that wagon you've always wanted. SWAP for a '61 Ford wagon now while your Ford Dealer's celebrating recordbreaking sales. SAVE with the wagon America loves most . . . made by FORD . . . America's station wagon specialists for 32 years!

Many Of Our States Increase Taxes

New proof that a "broad-based" tax does not sate a state's appetite for more revenue is provided by a survey of what legislatures have been up to in the 47 states that have sessions this year. In 23, many of them with broad-based taxes, other levies were increased.

Some states demonstrated the inevitability of the "creep." Broad-based taxes are always introduced at modest rates, but they don't stay modest long. Maryland and West Virginia widened the coverage of their sales taxes, while Alaska and New Mexico increased their income

The broad-based tax does not rescue the taxpayer from other raids. This was shown in such income-tax states as Alaska, which upped its take on cigarettes and gasoline, and Minnesota, which raised its cigarette tax.

Sales tax states, among them Nevada, New Mexico, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Washington and West Virginia, boosted the cigarette tax. So did Maryland, Missouri and Oklahoma, which have endowed themselves with both sales and income taxes. Nothing multiplies as rapidly as ideas for spending other people's money.

Disengagement

Among the perilous words that have come into our vocabulary in these "Cold War" days is disengagement. Those who believe in whatever they believe disengagement to mean generally hold that peace may be achieved by giving up, by cowardice, by an avoidance of responsibility by inaction.

The intellectuals and scientists are among the principal advocates of disengagement. It is to them that Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg addressed him-

"I suggest to the intellectual seeking peace through disengagement that he ponder an activist path toward peace which we can all share. This path leads toward the completion of our own Revolution in other free socities, and the making of a world order in which a balance of terror would lose its power. I would suggest to him the historical reminder that peace can only be attained in freedom, and that it is peace in freedom that we all seek and must work to attain."

The term, revolution, as it is here used refers to the President's apt phrase:

"This nation was born of revolution and raised in freedom. And we do not intend to leave an open road to despotism."

The principal characteristic of the American Revolution which took about two centuries to establish itself was acceptance not only of the concept of the freedom of the individual but also an acceptance of his dignity as an independent being. It is this sense of individual dignity that made the American the citizen more important than the government; it made for an acceptance of Natural Law as the guiding beacon of his existence. In a word, we have assumed that without morality there can be no strength; without justice there can be no purpose in work or even in continued

Secretary of Labor Goldberg dares to raise these moral issues in an address, in which he said:

"We know too well from the lessons of history that tyranny often seeks to disguise itself by the assertion of humane goals. For us, means as well as ends are important. And for us, while we recognize any nation's right to achieve a fashion of economic system of its own making, we do not concede the right in moral terms to fashion a political system which denies liberty, human dignity and the rights of man,"

In a word, he denies the right of Communism to enslave the mind and the personality of man. That is the essential attitude of the American people, but it becomes doubly significant when it comes from one whose life has been in association with organized labor in this country. And the fact is that, on the whole, organized labor has been more consistently anti-Communist than many of our big businessmen who in their anxiety for a contract forget their principles of life. Even at this moment, some of them are pressing for a recognition of Red China because they believe that there is a dollar to be made in that. It was the labor group rather than the businessmen who gave Khrushchev a bad time when he came to this country and was wined and dined by those who hoped for a

This we need to remember and understand because what faces us in the future is war and in time of war, whether it be a shooting war or what these days is called a cold war, which only means a war by different methods, those who are not for us are against us. And that applies to internal as well as external enemies.

The internal enemy is particularly dangerous because he is not readily recognizable and because to suppress him might mean the suppression of freedom which we do not want. For many years, the Communists have benefitted by this attitude of the American people. The recent Frankfurter Decision in the Supreme Court will probably clip their wings here forever, but it has taken many years for this country to realize how dangerous the internal enemy can be. When Hitler employed the Fifth Column we recognized it, but even today there are those in this country who still regard the Communist Party as just another political party.

The Secretary of Labor in his address before the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati gave American labor a new type of leadermip which thus far has been extraordinarily

Drug Prices Draws Ire Of Nixon

Kefauver of Tennessee vesterday opened new drug hearings which are going to make the American Medical Association (AMA) and the big drug companies awfully mad. But they will make most doctors and all people who have to pay for medicine glad.

Kefauver has introduced a bill. S. 1552, in cooperation with Rep. Manny Celler of New York, aimed at bringing down the high price of pills. His bill would also safeguard both the public and the overworked doctor from highly advertised but untested medicine which sometimes has very harmful side effects.

Even before the hearings opened, the Kefauver-Celler Bill came in for a barrage of criticism from none other than ex-Vice President Nixon. Speaking in New York last week Nixon branded the bill as a "punitive measure" against the drug industry and berated it about as vigorously as he berated Kennedy.

What most people didn't realize, however, was that Nixon was speaking before the Pharmaceutical Advertising Clubs of New York, Chicago, and Montreal, and the chairman who introduced him "as the man who should have been President" was Elmer Bobst, head of the giant Warner-Lambert Drug Company.

Mr. Bobst was a big money raiser for Mr. Nixon last year, having been among only 91 Amer-

lin. Every imaginable aspect has language of Khrushchev's threatening pronouncements to the state

icans who gave more than $10,000 to the Republican Party in the 1960 election - in his case $13,000. Bobst was also chairman of the Republican money-raising drive in New Jersey.

Squibbs And GOP

The drug industry, which Sen. Kefauver wants to regulate through S. 1552, and which Mr. Bobst doesn't want regulated, has been very kind to Mr. Bobst, and you can understand why he gave so much money to Nixon who opposes regulation.

For many years, Bobst was the American big wheel for the Swiss drug firm of Hoffman-LaRoche and received 5 per cent of its profits. This gave him $300,000 a year. Later as chairman of Warner-Lambert, Bobst's salary rated second only to General Motors executives as the highest in the United States.

Warner-Lambert could afford it. Fortune Magazine lists it as one of the most prosperous companies in the USA with a net profit after taxes of around 20

Other big Republican moneyraisers who have profited from the drug industry and who back Nixon as against the Kefauver bill are executives of Olin Mathieson, a far-flung firm which owns E. R. Squibbs and sons. Spencer T. Olin was head of the entire Republican Finance Committee last year and together with his family coughed up $37,000 for the GOP. Though Squibbs accounts for only one-fifth of Olin-Mathieson's sales in 1958, profits are so high in the drug industry that Squibbs rolled up four-fifths of Olin-Mathieson's profits.

Delightful Senator Everett Dirksen, who represents Olin-Mathieson's home state of Illionis and who is a member of the Kefauver committee on drug-price fixing, did his best to sidetrack the hearings at first and signed a dissenting report. So did every other Republican on the Kefauver committee-Hruska of Nebraska and Wiley of Wisconsin. They voted with the big GOP contributors.

Squibbs Doctor Squeals

You can understand why Olin-Mathieson should be so completely unenthusiastic about Mr. Kefauver's effort to regulate the drug industry, for Keef dug some highly embarrassing skeletons out of the drug closet. For instance he put Squibbs' former medical director, Dr. Console, on the witness stand and drew from him this testimony about the drug companies' habit of putting unsound and ineffective drugs on the market through a barrage of advertising:

"The problem arises out of the fact that they (the drug companies) market so many failures," said the former medical director of Squibbs. "Between these failures which are presented as new drugs and the useless modifications of old drugs - the addition of zinc to vitamins is a good example - most of the research results in a treadmill and moves so fast it gets nowhere.

"Since so much depends on novelty," testified Dr. Console, 'drugs change like women's hernlines. . . I doubt that there are many other industries in which research is so free of risk. With a little luck, proper timing, and a good promotion program, a bag of asafetida with a unique chemical side chain can be made to look like a wonder drug.

"The illusion may not last. But by the time the doctor learns what the company knew at the beginning, it has two new products to take the place of the old one.

The Kefauver-Celler Bill which the big drug companies and ex-Vice President Nixon are opposing would do the following:

1.-License all drug companies and permit the Food and Drug Administration to inspect any drug company's operation.

2.—Permit the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare to fix easy and simple names for drugs, instead of confusing names which even some doctors can't remember. Testimony during the Kefauver hearings showed that some drug companies deliberately attached confusing names to basic drugs in order to sell the same thing by a simpler, trademarked and more profitable name - at triple and quadruple the price.

3.-Permit Food and Drug to ban drugs which have injurious side effects; and permit the Secretary of HEW to publish lists of harmful drugs.

4.-Restrict patents on new drugs for three years instead of 17. after which the new drug would bring a royalty of 8 per cent for the remainder of the 17 years; ban patents on combinations of old drugs put together under a new name; ban monopoly combines of drug companies for the purpose of hiking the price of bills.

This is why the drug industry is boiling mad at Senator Kefauver and why it has sent armies of lobbyists, despite the heat, streaming to Washington in mid-summer to beat his bill.

By Jim Bishop

She awakened suddenly, like a bubble of air coming up to the surface of the sea. She popped up in bed, the features frightened in the dark, the fingers braced behind her hips. For a part of one second-but no longer-Valerie tried to remember. Then the emotional carousel began its hurdy-gurdy grind and her brain told her all the bad things.

I am me: I never feel well; Harry died three years ago; my hands shake all the time; I'm afraid; I can't eat; I can't sleep; the pills are no good; the doctor is no good; my life is no good; now the only good thing I have is gone-sleep.

Sleep. The friend of the unloved; the protector of the childish mind; the first cousin to death. Sleep. She swung her feet over the edge of the bed and, in the dark, her feet found the mules. Across the foot of the bed she felt for the robe and found it.

In the bathroom, she flipped the light on. She was afraid to look in the medicine chest mirror. She didn't want to, but she was drawn to it. She had to see. Valerie looked. The face was skinny and frightened and sick; the little mouth pouted; the gray eyes darted from the stringy mousy hair to the horizontal fur-Yes, and some of the infants .rows across the forehead to the puffy lids and down the cavernous cheeks to the vertical columns standing in the neck.

> A pointless gesture. She cupped her face in her hands and drew the skin back. Some of the puffiness around the eyes disappeared and the lines in the face faded. It was no good. She had to let go sometime. Valerie opened the medicine chest. She shook the bottle of tranquilizers.

No. Better not. There were too few left. Dr. Waters would say that she was showing no improvement and should go away for treatment. Valerie was having none of that. That was the damn trouble - nobody understood her. Just nobody. Except Harry. And Harry was gone three years. He had said "So long, doll" out of the car window and backed out of the drive. That was all. "So long, doll." What he left Valerie was a great love, $25,000 in insurance, a ranch house, no children, no relatives and a lot of velvet dreams which became nightmares only when she awakened.

Valerie poured a drink. No more pills tonight. Tonight? It was 4 a. m. She knew that without looking at the kitchen clock. It was always four o'clock. She took the drink out on the porch and sat in the wicker chair. The hands couldn't shake this drink loose. She had two ounces in an

She stared diagonally upward through the screen. The stars were out. She and they remained awake until dawn. They would die together - all of them and little her. She sat, one knee over the other, sipping the drink and listening to the night sounds. Down the street was a street light brazen in its lonesomeness. A few fireflies skipped low across the grass. Somewhere near a frog croaked. Far off, she heard the whine of a police car. She listened to the emotional carousel awhile; this time she listened too long and, by the time she tilted the last sip out of the glass, her tears fell in.

She tried not to think of Harry. She tried not to think of the men she had dated since then. She tried not to think of her worn face and all that had happened to it in 45 years. Valerie was watching herself. That's what she was doing; standing apart from herself and watching for symptoms of nerves.

She rubbed her face lightly and the skin felt hot. She felt her pulse in a bony wrist. It was fast. She could hear her own breathing in the dark. She wanted desperately to live; she wanted one more crack at happiness. Just one more. But no man was intrested. No one.

Valerie set the glass down and went through her nice home. She put all the lights on in all the rooms and admired the furniture and the flower arrangements. She admired the two spare bedrooms and the figured spreads which watched the violet curtains. Then she put all the lights out.

She went out and sat on the porch. She fingered her throat and caught herself doing it and stopped. Sleep. All right thenshe was willing to give up on happiness. She would settle for sleep. She looked at the kitchen clock. It was eight minutes after

Valerie knew what would happen. When the advance agents of the sun-the pastel green rays and the pinks and yellows-suffused the sky, she would get up and go inside and crawl into bed whimpering and then, before she knew it, sleep would come and she would lie on her side with her knees up tight.

It was always the same. At 10, the phone would ring and she would bounce with fright. She would clear her throat and force the cheerfulness into her voice. "Yes? . . . Oh it's you, nurse . . . Fine. Couldn't be better . . . Tell the doctor I'm thinking of discontinuing the pills . . . After all, who needs them?" . . .

On this July 4th week-end, (as this is being written) Washington has its customary look of dull sleepiness. The President led the holiday exodus of high officials. But wherever they are, the chiefs of American policy-makers are now tensely waiting for a sign, to fight if need be. which the President will probably give when he returns from Hyan-

The reason is that the long. churning, life-and-death argument about the right response to Nikita Khrushchev's threat to Berlin came to a kind of climax last week. The time allowed for debate is now running out. The time is fast approaching when inaction will imply a policy, just as surely

The climax was reached at the last meeting of the National Security Council. Some weeks ago, the President asked former Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson to prepare a Berlin balance sheet, with recommendations. On Thursday, Acheson presented his balance sheet, with most incisive recommendations, at a Council meeting that ran on until the eve-

No information is, of course, available about the detailed nature of the Acheson recommendations. But it is well known that Acheson favors massive, immediate military mobilization, perhaps involving the recall to the colors of as many as a million reservists and members of the National

It is further known why Acheson favors this kind of prompt and very drastic action. Every possible sign suggests that mere words - even including the President's sternly precise words at Vienna - have altogether failviction that the United States will not fight for Berlin's freedom. Hence, Acheson believes that the U. S. must prove its resolution by acts - in fact by getting ready

It is also known that Acheson is supported, at least in principle by Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara. In a fit of irritability understandably generated by extreme strain, the President has ordered an inquiry into the publication of bits and pieces of alleged Joint Chiefs of Staff planning for Berlin. But the kind of thing favored at the top level in the Pentagon almost certainly goes beyond what has been pub-ed to shake Khrushchev's con- call-up favored by Acheson might perhaps reach a million men. The scale of call-up favored by the Pentagon policy-makers might not exceed half a million. Yet it would still be very massive. and it would also take place without further delay.

It can be seen, then, why the NSC meeting last Thursday must have been a climax of sorts. One does not need a particle of information about what passed behind the NSC's guarded doorway in order to be quite certain that this was a climax.

Ever since the President's return from Vienna, after all, a substantial majority of the government's foreign and defense policymakers have been mainly preflect on the anonymity of congressmen recently. In a return to his district to attend a formal function, Hays was driven down in a car carrying the placard,

"Cong. Wayne L. Hays." A small boy looked at the car, its occu-

"Hey, mister, are you from the Congo?"

In this case, what has now happened poses a clear choice for the President which cannot be much longer deferred. He must all, the views of the group known in the inner rooms of the government as "The Mobilizationists."

brings on a climax.

The decision cannot be put off much longer, simply because the Mobilizationists want real mobilization, which will produce a real increase of military strength, not only in the Strategic Air Command, but also in the reserves in this country, at sea, and above all in NATO. Except with respect to SAC, mobilization later on will be a mere political gesture, undertaken too late to provide an increase of real strength before the expected crunch at Berlin. Before he left for Hyannis, the President had given no indication what his decision would be. That is why those around him are waiting for a sign.

Use Judgment In Selecting Children's Camp

Between 6 and 8 million American youngsters go to camp every summer. This vacation provides an adventure in fun, out of door living, and getting along with other children. Boys and girls learn new skills and have the opportunity to observe the wonders of nature in fields and forests. Not all children are suitable camp material and not all camps are worth considering. Parents must use their judgment after investigating the program and those operating the camp. Individual differences make one camp better than another for their needs. Parents must be conscientious about the selection; otherwise the child might as well stay home.

Resident and day camps for handicapped children offer treatment and advice in addition to the usual camp activities. Few jobs are as rewarding and satisfying as working with these youngsters during the summer months, personal needs, with orthopedic handicaps, cerebral palsy, heart disease, blindness, loss of hearing, or mental emotional problems. The majority are careful in selecting candidates because they do not have the staff to attend to the more seriously handicapped. Some camps will take children with orthopedic handicaps provided they can get about without a wheelchair. Others limit enrollment to youngsters who can climb one flight of stairs, dress themselves, and take care of their

Camps for the handicapped are found in almost every state. In this country there are 36 for diabetics, 30 for children with heart disease, 27 for the emotionally disturbed, 50 for victims of mental retardation, and 13 for epileptics. There are 141 resident camps for children with orthopedic or neurological disturbances, 45 for children with speech and/or hearing disorders, 44 for the visually handicapped, and 5 for the socially maladjusted.

LaVale Sewage Solution Is Promised

County Unit Proposes Action

The Allegany County Sanitary Commission last night promised action in getting something done about the LaVale sewage problem when the unit met with the LaVale Civic Improvement Association at the Court House.
